Clicking on Xiao Zouzou's social media page feels like walking into a national museum. The screen is suddenly filled with all kinds of ancient Chinese treasures. However, none of them are real — they're all cakes. The young woman from Wuhan hopes to turn these ancient treasures into things people can feel and taste.

Zou always dreamed of opening her own dessert shop. After graduating from university, she began to study dessert-making seriously. In 2025, she started her own dessert studio.

The turning point came in 2018. That year, she made the Marquis Yi Chime Bells① into a cake and took it to an international cake competition. She won a silver medal and impressed bakers from all over the world. Zou realized that traditional Chinese treasures could come alive in this sweet and modern way. As she said, "Our ancient treasures are beautiful and should not be forgotten. This is a new way to protect and carry on our culture."

By 2025, she had completed 14 dessert replicas (复制品) and received wide praise online. Her favourite piece is a replica of the Fuhao Owl-Shaped Bronze Zun②. Created in the Shang Dynasty, the original is a bronze wine container in the shape of owl. Zou made its body from cake and the head and beak from puffed (膨化) rice grains. For the patterns, Zou used fondant (翻糖).

Fans from all over the country have asked Zou to make dessert replicas of ancient treasures from their cities. Their support has inspired her to keep building her "dessert museum". She has even set a big goal for herself to create 100 ancient treasure dessert replicas. We're looking forward to the sweet surprises she will bring next!

Notes:

① the Marquis Yi Chime Bells: 曾侯乙编钟，战国早期文物，迄今数量最多、保存最完好的编钟；

② the Fuhao Owl-Shaped Bronze Zun: 妇好鸮尊，商代晚期铜器，形态为站立的鸮鸟，形象勇猛威严。

56. What can you see on Zou's social media page?

A.

B.

C.

D.

57. Why does Zou make ancient treasures into cakes?

A. To make money as fast as possible.
B. To protect and pass on Chinese culture.
C. To become well-known worldwide.
D. To learn more about historical events.

58. How did people react to Zou's dessert replicas online?

A. They made bad comments.
B. They praised them widely.
C. They asked to buy them all.
D. They were picky about the details.

59. What does Zou use fondant for in her cake replicas?

A. The patterns on the replica.
B. The body of the replica.
C. The head of the replica.
D. The base of the replica.

60. What would be the best title for the passage?

A. Xiao Zouzou's Wild Dreams of Business
B. Easy Success Comes from Sweet Cakes
C. Making Desserts Popular in Museums
D. When Desserts Meet Ancient Treasures

Have you ever felt a day pass by super quickly? This summer, it really did! In July and August, scientists recorded several of the fastest days in recent history. On these days, the earth spun (旋转) a tiny bit faster than normal — about one thousandth of a second faster.

We all know a day is 24 hours long. That's 1,440 minutes, or 86,400 seconds. That's how long it usually takes the earth to spin around once. But that's only an average. In reality, the earth's spin changes slightly every day. Sometimes it's slower. Sometimes, like this summer, it's faster.

For thousands of years, people used the earth's spin to tell time. But in the 1950s, scientists began using atomic (原子的) clocks. These clocks are based on how fast atoms vibrate (振动). They can exactly measure tiny changes in the earth's speed — just a few milliseconds. That is far quicker than the blink of an eye!

In July 2024, the fastest day ever was recorded. The earth finished its spin about 1.65 milliseconds early. This year, July 9 and August 5 were also "fast days". On each, the earth turned about 1.3 milliseconds faster than usual.

__★__? The moon's gravity (重力) plays a big role. As the moon circles around the earth, sometimes it's closer and sometimes it's farther away. And the moon's orbit① itself doesn't stay fixed — it moves in space. Other factors, such as the earth's atmosphere② and major wind systems, can also influence the earth's spin. It may be surprising that the earth's core, which is the center deep inside our planet, can influence its speed as well.

Even though we've had some fast days recently, scientists say that over millions of years, the earth is actually slowing down. It loses a couple of milliseconds every hundred years. So, if you feel like time is flying, enjoy it — our planet won't keep up this pace forever.

Notes: ① orbit: 天体等运行的轨道; ② atmosphere: 围绕地球的大气层。

61. What does the underlined word "it" in paragraph 1 refer to?

A. The moon.　　B. The earth.　　C. A day.　　D. A summer.

62. What can we know about atomic clocks?

A. They can tell the changes of the earth's speed.

B. They were invented in 1950.

C. They can change the speed of the earth's spin.

D. They made atoms vibrate faster.

63. Which of the following can be put in __★__?

A. How should we deal with the situation

B. When does the earth become slow or fast

C. What makes our planet speed up or slow down

D. Why is the change so important to our daily lives

64. What influence(s) the speed of the earth's spin?

① The moon's gravity and orbit.　　② The earth's atmosphere.

③ The wind systems.　　④ The earth's core.

A. ①　　B. ②③　　C. ①②③　　D. ①②③④

65. According to the last paragraph, what message does the writer make clear?

A. Live in the moment.　　B. Forget about the past.

C. Worry about our future.　　D. Stop working hard.
